EDITOR'S BOTTOMLINE

In today's world of instant multitasking, mental, psychological plus physical draining is inevitable, that it's no wonder we often feel the emotion 'enough is enough!' It's difficult to prioritise these tasks as exigencies crop up, competing with work deadlines that weigh one down. Simultaneously, surprise callers/ visitors expect immediate attention, and thus the list of being carried with the flow is endless...

The brain suffers from mind blocks from too much thinking and planning, as well as finishing the various jobs slotted for completion, thereby affecting our ability to embrace all and do so as expertly as we would desire. They are like invisible barriers standing in the way of our productivity and potential. We tend to get trapped by our own thought processes; get overwhelmed or anxious.

The necessities of livelihood in current times, however, drive us at a pace faster than we can cope with, but how much of what we chase after is truly necessary for our basic well-being? The buck of acquisition never takes a break unless we disallow it from turning into an obsession!

A stitch in time most often saves nine, as the oft-repeated adage goes! Isn't this then the moment to hit the 'pause' button, take some deep breaths, and ponder over how much we can push ourselves; what unnecessary activities, habits, or whatever engagements or commitments we can dispense with for a while? De-clutter your daily routine. And pay attention to your monologues and control the chatter in your mind. Each person must put life in perspective and arrive at a subjectively balanced lifestyle.

Mysterious beach debris is 1800s shipwreck

Florida: A large and mysterious wooden object, partially unearthed by hurricane erosion on a Florida beach, appears to be a shipwreck from the 1800s, according to archaeologists who inspected the site.

"This is definitely a ship," Chuck Meide, director of the Lighthouse Archaeological Maritime Program from the St. Augustine Lighthouse and Maritime Museum, said after he and 10 Florida archaeologists removed sand from the 80-foot-long structure in Daytona Beach Shores. "And that's just because of the construction of it. You can see these timbers sticking up, those are massive, and the way they're arranged, that's how you build a ship," he said.

The wooden structure was discovered last month following heavy erosion from Hurricanes Ian and Nicole.

Parade of 122 hearses

South Africa: A trade expo for the funeral industry in South Africa broke an unusual Guinness World Record when 122 hearses participated in a parade. 122 vehicles gathered last March in Midrand, South Africa, on a track measuring 4.522km. The Funerex Africa expo gathered the vehicles at the Kyalami Grand Prix Circuit track in Sandton to break the Guinness World Record for largest parade of hearses.

Organisers said there were 123 hearses at the event, one of them, unfortunately, encountered technical problems during the attempt and was deducted from the count.

The hearses involved in the parade ranged from decades-old black cars to the newer white models. The associations each filmed a video pledging how many vehicles they would be able to dedicate for the record.

Prioritise road repairs in city; then go for Peripheral Ring Road

Sir,

The Mysuru Urban Development Authority's (MUDA) plans to build a new Peripheral Ring Road is indeed a hasty and unreasonable decision (SOM dated Nov. 23, 2022).

There are thousands of roads inside the city and many smaller roads inside layouts which are not properly tarred and they look uneven, muddy, shabby, absolutely unmotorable and even unwalkable too! Another thing to be noted is the bad condition of the pavements, sidewalks which are not at all uniform, particularly in and around markets (Vani Vilas Market). Added to these, we find filth, garbage and unhygienic scene around such densely populated areas.

Under such circumstances, is it not the priority of the Government and other authorities to set right the existing roads and pavements on a war-footing ?

This will simultaneously solve the garbage issue too.

If our Mysuru should become a "Swacha City" once again, let the Government's priorities be right.

Basavanna's vision of an equal society remains a dream, regrets CM

Mysuru, Dec. 11 (MTY&DM)- Chief Minister Basavaraj Bommai on Saturday regretted that a society as envisioned by the 12th century social reformer Basavanna has remained a dream.

He was speaking after inaugurating "Belli Belagu", Silver Jubilee celebrations of Basava Balagagala Okkuta (Federation of Basava Balagas) organised jointly by Akhila Bharat Veerashaiva-Lingayat Mahasabha and Veerashaiva –Lingayat Associations in Suttur Mutt premises at the foot of Chamundi Hill here on Saturday.

Maintaining that Basavanna is as relevant as before, Bommai bemoaned that the ills of the society against which Basavanna fought still persist.

Calling upon the followers of Basavanna, Veerashaiva Lingayat Mutts, Basava Balaga organisations and the youth to strive hard for building a casteless, equal and discrimination-free society as dreamt by Basavanna, the CM said everyone should take a pledge in this regard. He also noted that the social reformer will continue to remain relevant as long as inequality, superstitious beliefs and atrocities against women continue in the society.

Continuing, Bommai said that inequality persists in three forms — Economic, Educational and Social. Stressing on the need for ensuring that everybody should enjoy the fruits of economic development, he called upon people who had earned enough, to cultivate the spirit of giving or doing 'Dasoha'.

Emphasising on the need for spreading Basavanna's philosophy of life and his righteous path to lead a self-reliant and dignified life, Bommai hailed the contribution of Basavanna, Akka Mahadevi and other Vachanakaras for the promotion of Kannada literature, language and way of life. He also reminisced the contributions of Vachanakara Akka Mahadevi and great warriors Rani Chennamma,Keladi Chennamma and Belavadi Mallamma for the empowerment of women.

Reiterating that economic development should be comprehensive, Bommai said that we should understand that a man becomes rich with not just money, but by virtue of his nature and values. Pointing out that after the contribution of Moola and Aadi Kannada, Vachanas and Dasa Sahitya have contributed for the richness of Kannada language and our life, he observed that we must adapt the concepts in them. We should treat everyone with respect and build a society of equality, he added.

Suttur Mutt Seer Sri Shivarathri Deshikendra Swamiji who graced the occasion, said that Basavanna, who led a simple life, had a great vision. Asserting that the 12th century social reformer gave a new direction to the world, he said that people must read Vachanas for a better and purposeful life and it is also important that they adopt them in their respective lives.

District Minister S.T. Somashekar released a souvenir brought out by the Okkuta on the occasion.

MLA L. Nagendra, Mayor Shivakumar, Deputy Mayor Dr. G. Roopa, Regional Commissioner Prakash, DC Dr. K.V. Rajendra, City Police Commissioner B. Ramesh, District BJP President Mangala Somashekar, Okkuta President L.S. Mahadevaswamy, office-bearers and others were present.

Chief Minister Basavaraj Bommai offering floral tributes to the bust of Basavanna to inaugurate 'Belli Belagu', the Silver Jubilee celebrations of Basava Balagagala Okkuta in city yesterday as Suttur Seer Sri Shivarathri Deshikendra Swamiji, District Minister S.T. Somashekar, MLA L. Nagendra, Mayor Shivakumar, Deputy Mayor Dr. G. Roopa, District BJP President Mangala Somashekar and others look on.

'Congress will not win; Siddharamaiah to lose'

Earlier speaking to presspersons upon his arrival at Mandakalli Airport, CM Bommai asserted that the Congress which is dreaming of coming to power in the forthcoming polls, will surely taste defeat at the hustings. Contending that even Opposition leader Siddharamaiah too will lose the polls from wherever he contests, Bommai reiterated that Congress leaders are simply fancying their chances of power as they are blind to reality in Karnataka where the BJP is on a strong footing.

Pointing out that Karnataka polls is being naturally discussed after the Gujarat polls, the CM said the Gujarat poll results will definitely have a bearing in Karnataka and the BJP has evolved strategies to win the polls.

Highlighting the organisational measures taken by the party, he said that more prominence has been given for old Mysuru region as the party aims to win as many seats from this region as well.

When asked about the probability of an early polls, Bommai, who got a little upset, said that there is no such possibility.

Arresting, threatening minor for violating law during Sankeerthana Yatra

FIR against eight Policemen

Srirangapatna, Dec. 11 (Vinay Karekura&KS)- A First Information Report (FIR) has been registered against eight Police personnel including Srirangapatna Inspector for allegedly arresting a youth and threatening him for violating law during Sankeerthana Yatra, which was held on Dec. 4 in Srirangapatna. The youth, a 17-year-old from Pandavapura taluk, was arrested on Friday midnight.

The Police personnel named in the FIR are Umesha, Inspector Prakash, Krishna, Head Constable Vijay, Sharath, Harisha, Manjunatha, Raghavendra and other Police Constables.

Following the arrest of the minor, members of Hindu Jagarana Vedike and other pro-Hindu organisations staged a protest in front of the Town Police Station yesterday demanding suspension of Police personnel.

They alleged that the minor was arrested from his house in the midnight and brought to the Police Station, where he was intimidated at the behest of people from other community.

SP N. Yathish, who arrived at the spot in the evening, tried to convince the protesters, but in vain. The protesters then took out a march from the Police Station, passed through the main road and reportedly tried to enter Jamia Masjid. Though the Police tried to stop them near Moodala Anjaneyaswamy Temple, the protesters marched ahead. To prevent any untoward incident, the Police had erected barricades. However, the restriction led to wordy duel between the Police and the protesters.

Meanwhile, SP Yathish sought two days' time to conduct enquiry and to take action against the erring Police personnel. But the protesters, who stood firm on their demand, told the SP that they would not budge from the spot. The protest continued beyond 10 pm despite rain.

Finally, at about 1 am, the SP announced that the FIR has been registered against the erring Police personnel. The protesters later dispersed from the area.

Fake marks cards: Case registered against teachers after 28 years

Mysuru, Dec. 11- Their unlawful act has finally caught up with four teachers with just a couple of years left for their retirement, as a criminal case has been registered against them in connection with fake marks cards scam, after 28 years of wrongdoing.

The teachers accused are Shivappa, 56, of Kabbatti cross Government High School, Yoganna, 58, of Gavenahalli Government High School, Mohini, 56 and B. Kaveri, 55, of Govt. High School on R.C. Road in Hassan.

Details: The Government had recruited these four teachers based on the submission of their academic records on Feb. 5, 1994. But it was later found that they had produced a fabricated degree marks cards, following which KSEEB Divisional Secretary Bharathi lodged a complaint with Lakshmipuram Police, who subsequently have booked a case against the four, it is learnt.

Rangayana Director seeks land, funds for theatre repertory

'I have cleansed Rangayana despite opposition from ideologically-driven vested interests'

Scenes from the plays Karnabharam, Chidambara Rahasya and Karimayi staged as part of Bahuroopi National Theatre Festival in city last evening.

Mysuru, Dec. 11 (SBD&BCT)- Using the platform of Bahuroopi National Theatre Festival that was inaugurated by Chief Minister Basavaraj Bommai last evening, Rangayana Director Addanda C. Cariappa, in his welcome address, flayed his critics for opposing him with ulterior motives.

"Criticism started from the day I was appointed as the Director (Dec. 31, 2019) and the shrill grew louder as I assumed charge. These vested interests have ensured that they oppose every step Rangayana has taken for the cause of art and theatre. But I am happy to say that I have discharged my duties effectively without being cowed down by threats and intellectual bankruptcy of the critics," he said.

"I have taken Rangayana to new heights and have strived day and night, even without any financial support from the Government during COVID-19 and ensured that Rangayana artistes and their families do not sleep hungry. While the CM's father S.R. Bommai visited Rangayana during Bahuroopi of those days, it is an important milestone with the presence of Basavaraj Bommai as the CM during this Bahuroopi," he said.

I had a wish of bringing the CM to Rangayana for Bahuroopi and today it has been realised. I don't mind now if you send me out as my desire has been fulfilled," he told the CM.

Turning towards his critics, Cariappa said that he has been unfairly targeted though he has done good work and has not allowed any political party to spread ideology like some Directors have done in the past.

"People with left and progressive ideologies tried to disrupt my plans and called me 'communal and 'RSS agent'. I am proud to say that RSS has given me culture and nationalistic spirit. I was opposed inside and outside Rangayana. They opposed me for inviting S.L. Bhyrappa and Chakravarthy Sulibele to Rangayana. But their machinations could not deter me and these people do not know the fact that I come from a warrior clan and my family members have served the Army. I am glad that I have cleansed Rangayana," he said.

Claiming that his first experiment of 'Parva' play — based on the novel of the same title by Saraswathi Samman Awardee Dr. S.L. Bhyrappa — earned Rs. 70 lakh so far, Cariappa said that Rangayana got only Rs. 20 lakh from the Government so far.

"Now Rangayana is staging 'Tipu Nija Kanasugalu' (Real Dreams of Tipu) and we have plans to stage the play across Karnataka and have planned at least 50 shows," he said, seeking funds from the CM, who also holds the Finance portfolio.

Cariappa sought the two-acre plot that was under the threat of encroachment for Rangayana. "The land belongs to Rangayana and we have fenced it as some vested interests were plotting to grab the land," he said.

Rangayana turning a centre of intellectual debates: CM

The inauguration of Bahuroopi was scheduled at Vanaranga Open Air Theatre on Rangayana campus but was shifted to Kalamandira due to rain.

"Most of the Universities in the world and the seats of learning, arts and culture including cultural forums like Rangayana are now becoming a centre of intellectual debates, giving space for intellectual fight. This has paved way for new thinking and truth is being told and such debates are playing a crucial role in rekindling people's thoughts and renewal of culture. Institutions like Rangayana should continue their activities fearlessly to correct the system in the society for a better future," he noted.

The inauguration of the festival was done in a unique way where the map of India was unveiled by the CM and children dressed in different attires symbolising the rich clothing tradition of various parts of the country. This year, Bahuroopi has been organised with the theme of Indianness

Triggering intellectual debate

"Theatres like Rangayana where the land's rich culture, heritage, language and arts are showcased daily must serve as a force for social change. They must make space for creativity and trigger intellectual debate to build peace. Art, literature and culture must not be stagnant. New ideas must be born and only then, a prosperous and progressive society can be achieved," Bommai said. He complimented Rangayana for its overarching theme of Indianness.

Complimenting Mysuru for bringing out new things, ideas and always staying ahead, Chief Minister Bommai said that Rangayana Mysuru stands out in unique experiments.

"You must come up with theatre shows that should play an important role in removing social evils. Carry out experiments on humanitarian issues," he added.

On acting and theatre

Speaking on theatre and acting, Bommai noted that theatre is the best medium to convey what cannot be said in words. "Through acting, we can communicate and make people easily understand issues. Such is the power of theatre," he said.

Turning to actor Ramesh Aravind, the CM said that he was a natural and simple actor. "An actor should not become conscious of his or her acting. An actor must be real, factual and natural in acting," he said.

Speaking on the occasion later, actor Ramesh Aravind said that the invisible bond that glues Indians is Indianness.

"Indianness is a combination of many things — culture, music, festivals and many such fundamentals have kept it alive," he said.

Recalling the contribution of Rangayana, Ramesh Aravind said that the repertory has produced many talents who have gained name and fame.

"I can see here that many artistes have come to Bahuroopi from different States and this will help exchange ideas, knowledge and culture. We get to know many things from others and it makes us knowledgeable. And only knowledge can make us successful," the actor noted.

District In-charge Minister Somashekar released a souvenir about the Bahuroopi National Theatre Festival and Ramesh Arvind released the Bahuroopi Bulletin.

Macaulay system of education threatening our very identity, rues writer

Mysuru, Dec. 11 (MTY&DM)- Writer V.B. Arathi said that the Macaulay system of education introduced by the British, is threatening our own identity.

She was speaking on the topic 'Ancient culture and Indianness' at the National seminar organised as part of Bahuroopi National Theatre Festival at B.V. Karanth Ranga Chavadi in Rangayana premises here on Saturday.

Maintaining that the country has retained its own identity because of the strong roots of Indianness, Arathi bemoaned the foreign influence on our lifestyles. Pointing out that Indianness has still remained intact because of our culture, she said that our culture was not born out of force, but of love, harmony and generosity.

Observing that those who came to loot our country, did not have an understanding of our rich culture, she said that everyone should read our epics as they explore the ways of our life. Stressing on the need for doing away with Mall culture as it is a western idea, she highlighted the importance of promoting local shopkeepers.

Earlier, senior writer Dr. S.R. Leela, who spoke after inaugurating the seminar, said that music, vocal and dance have a special place in the Indian theatre. She further said that our rich heritage and practices is the main reason for survival of cinemas that focus on performing arts.

Rangayana Director Addanda C. Cariappa presided. Noted theatre personality and actor S.N. Sethuram, Rangayana Deputy Director Nirmala Mathapati, Jagadish Manevarthe, S. Ramnath and others were present.

Global tenders for DPR

"As far as possible, identify Government land and existing roads for the project and avoid lakes, water bodies, temples and other religious structures and monuments of historical and archaeological value while building the road. If these aspects are taken into consideration while preparing the DPR, many issues can be avoided later," the MP Pratap Simha said.

Directing the officers to extend the Peripheral Ring Road (PRR) up to an area of 102 km or 103 km from the existing 72 km, he said that Sridhar, who has experience in building the 10-lane Highway from Mysuru to Bengaluru could provide valuable inputs to the project.

The MP was informed that the global tenders to prepare the DPR for the Peripheral Ring Road will be floated soon after the approval comes from the Urban Development Department. Qualified DPR-makers for such projects will be entrusted with the task and MUDA has already reserved Rs. 5 crore for the purpose. But the final cost of DPR preparation will be estimated after the Government approval.

Explaining the MUDA's plan to the meeting, the MUDA Commissioner said that it will be a 45-metre-wide road that requires a total area of 824 acres. 750 metres on either side of the Peripheral Ring Road will be acquired for the Town Planning Scheme which is 27,500 acres of total area. There will be six main lanes and four lanes for the service road, he added.

The Peripheral Ring Road will involve land acquisition on the Mysuru-Bengaluru 10-lane Expressway, agricultural lands on Mysuru-Bannur Road, Mosambayanahalli Road, Dyavalapura Road, Mysuru-Ooty Road, Kadakola-Jayapura Road, Mysuru-Manandavadi Road, KHB Private Layout Road, Jnana Ganga Layout, Ballahalli Layout, Huyilalu-Yelwal Road, Nagawala-Yelwal Road and Yelwal-Paschimavahini Road, the MP said.

Others present during the meeting were Town Planner Member Shesha, Superintending Engineer Channakeshava, Assistant Director Yajnendra, Executive Engineer Kiran Kumar and Assistant Executive Engineers.

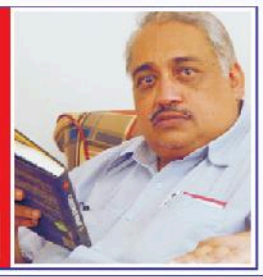
Over a cup of evening Tea



By Dr. K. Javeed Nayeem, MD

Two beautiful buildings, but whither heritage?

Very recently I saw a news report in Star of Mysore that the Command Area Development Authority (CADA) building in our city was getting a complete makeover. As most of us Mysureans know, this very ornamental and majestic building which stands on Sayyaji Rao Road, in close proximity to our Amba Vilas Palace, once housed the offices of the Mysore Palace. The building was constructed exactly a hundred and one years ago, in the year 1921 by His Highness Nalwadi Krishnaraja Wadiyar and it was later passed on to the CADA.

This Rs 1.65 crore restoration work, undertaken by the Public Works Department (PWD), is said to be going on under the strict guidance and supervision of very knowledgeable experts in the field of the preservation and restoration of heritage structures, after approval from the District Heritage Committee. All this naturally sounds very reassuring to armchair heritage buffs like me, who are apprehensive that no heritage building in our city should be allowed to lose its dignity and go the Devaraja Market and Lansdowne building way.

The report also went on to give details about how age-old, traditional building materials and techniques were being used to restore this building to its original glory. It appears that the materials that are being used in this ongoing restoration work are similar to the ones that were originally used when the building was constructed, because the heritage guidelines mandate the same. Materials like lime mortar, jaggery paste, soapnut, brick powder and M-Sand are being used to plaster the walls to ensure that the distinct character of the building is retained.

While all this sounded fine, the mention of M-Sand however struck a discordant note in my mind and I could not help wondering why the traditional old kind of river-bed sand was not being used here. But being a most forgiving man, let me hope that this reference to the kind of sand being used, is only a typographical error in the report!

An old photograph of the Palace Offices building.

The Government House solar water tanks.

So far so good. But I wonder if the heritage experts overseeing the restoration work of this building will raise their heads and look at something else that has been allowed to mar not only its beauty but also outrage its heritage status, over the past thirty years or so. I am talking about the four disgustingly ugly water tanks that have been erected at its four corners, under its beautiful domed canopies.

This was done most irresponsibly by some very practical minded but certainly ham-handed government functionaries, to meet the needs of its much-augmented work force, when the building changed roles from being the majestic Palace Office to just another drab government office, sans any heritage upholding responsibility.

But now that it is getting a makeover that is purportedly going to preserve its heritage character, can we expect the experts reposed with the responsibility of overseeing this work to also ensure that these ugly water tanks are relocated to a place where they are out of public view and thus once again restore the original beauty of the building?

Coming to the second building, to the sorry plight of which I wish to draw the attention of our heritage experts, I would like to emphasise here that it is for the third time that I am doing this. I am talking about our Government House, located in a sprawling expanse of nearly fifty acres of greenery in the heart of our city.

Incidentally, this building was the subject of my very first column, which I wrote more than seventeen years ago! It was built in the Tuscan Doric style, in the year 1805, as the official residence of the British representative in the Mysore Kingdom and it was then called the Lower Residency. Its front portion was built by Major Wilks and its rear portion designed by the famous engineer De Havilland, was added later by Sir John Malcolm and it was then the building with the largest hall, unsupported by pillars, in the whole of Southern India. Over the past few years, it bears a garish set of yellow, solar water heating tanks that have been prominently placed atop the more than two centuries old building.

One of the four water tanks atop the CADA Office.

The first time I drew the attention of the public of Mysuru to this sacrilege was when I wrote about it in this very same column, a good many years ago, when I first spotted the tanks, even as they were being placed where they now stand and mock at our sensibilities.

The second time I did it was when I, in the company of a small group of heritage experts, led by Prof. N.S. Rangaraju, spent some time standing at the majestic entrance arch to the Government House and discussing how best we could retain it, along with its almost identical counterpart, in front of our bus station.

This was the time when the two structures were in grave danger of being razed to the ground, to widen the busy roads around them. Thankfully, better sense has prevailed and the crisis has passed and now both the structures stand safe and tall, with metal barricades protecting them from any mishap.

But what has been done is not at all enough because nothing whatsoever has been done to restore their beauty, by cleaning away the age-old layers and layers of whitewash that have almost completely effaced the intricacies of the ornamentation on them. The picture that I have taken of the Government House today, clearly shows how ugly and out of place the yellow tanks look. I fervently hope that the powers that be, do something now, which they have so callously not bothered to do, over so many years.

It was a very foggy morning today when I went there, which has certainly lent a unique, mystical charm to the building and its environs and the pack of no less than nine, lowly, stray dogs that you can see in the picture, seemed to be the only denizens privileged to enjoy its charm and ethereal beauty!

UNLEASH – 22 Global Innovation Lab concludes

Young innovators must save ecology: Bommai

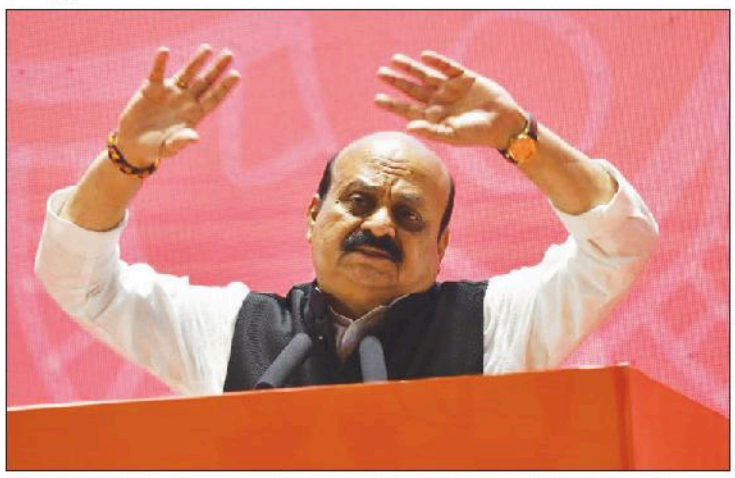
Human race belongs to nature and not the other way around, says Chief Minister

Mysuru, Dec. 11 (BCT)- The week-long innovation lab UNLEASH - 22 that began on Dec. 3 on the premises of Infosys at Hebbal concluded last evening.

The event brought together over 1,000 young innovators from around the world who showcased solutions to the most pressing issues aligned with UNESCO's Sustainable Development Goals (SDGs).

The teams derived their solutions through a design thinking process and presented them before a jury after an intensive, mentor-led series of deliberations. HCL Group partnered with UNLEASH to support talent and innovation.

The participants who took part in this edition of the global innovation lab designed solutions along 7 key SDGs — non-communicable diseases, mental health, education and information and communications technology, clean water and sanitation, clean and affordable energy for poverty alleviation, climate action, aquatic ecosystem conservation from source (mountains) to sink (oceans).



Chief Minister Basavaraj Bommai making a point at the closing ceremony of UNLEASH – 22 on the premises of Infosys at Hebbal last evening. Picture right shows Deputy Commissioner Dr. K.V. Rajendra, City Police Commissioner B. Ramesh, SP R. Chethan, ZP CEO B.R. Poornima, MCC Commissioner G. Lakshmikantha Reddy and DCP (Crime and Traffic) M.S. Geetha Prasanna among the audience.

CM's word of caution

Participating in the closing ceremony, Chief Minister Basavaraj Bommai called upon young innovators gathered to protect ecology from degradation that is rampant in the world now. "Our creativity, knowledge, science and technology will not be able to help us if we do not make our world a better place to live in. Sadly, the rate of ecological degradation is so high that what happened in the last 2,000 years is now happening in 20 years," he said.

"We have inherited this world from our elders and we must hand it over in a proper shape to the future generations. We must always remember that the human race belongs to nature and not the other way around," Bommai said.

In his talk laced with humour, the CM said, "Innovators must be 'hungry' to grow and achieve. If your belly ofthoughts is full, there are no hopes for growth. Only if you are hungry will you create tomorrow's world. The day you are satisfied, your identity will stop growing," he said.

Infosys Chairman Nandan Nilekani and celebrities like actress Kalki Koechlin and paralympic athlete and medallist Deepa Malik were also present at the closing ceremony.

In his address, Nilekani said that all the 1,000 participants are winners. "They came to Infosys' Mysuru campus with one purpose, to play a part in helping create a sustainable future. At Infosys, we see the planet's biggest challenges as opportunities to set new, bolder goals, rethink what we can do for the community, and set the highest standards in compliance and governance by being more transparent and credible," he said.

Flemming Besenbacher, Chairman of UNLEASH, and Lauren Behr, Senior Advisor for Innovation and Investment at Chemonics International were present.

THE WINNERS

MOST INNOVATIVE SOLUTION: (Infosys) People for Poop Management - Bringing dignity into the poop business - a real problem to solve - a tangible, viable solution - creates a positive impact for the people in the poop business through partnerships and leveraging existing technologies in new ways.

MOST PATHBREAKING SOLUTION: (HCL) Blue Carbon - Seagrass is the hidden carbon catcher - restoring seagrass is a massive contributor to saving our planet - a clever way to harvest seed and plant seagrass - massively influences the planet's ability in absorbing carbon.
